INTRODUCTION

The Boston Public Health Commission (BPHC) is the local public health department for the City of Boston. BPHC’s mission is to work in partnership with communities to protect and promote the health and well-being of all Boston residents, especially those impacted by racism and systemic inequities.

Pharmaceutical corporations flooded Massachusetts with opioids, fueling the opioid epidemic. Patients developed opioid use disorders, and many transitioned to street opioids and overdosed. Overdoses have killed almost 18,000 people in Massachusetts over the past 20 years. Then-Attorney General Maura Healey joined attorneys general from other states and litigated claims against these companies, winning settlements.

The State tasked municipalities with using opioid settlements funds in ways that reflect the wishes of those impacted. During Summer 2023, BPHC gathered additional input through a Request for Information from people affected by the opioid epidemic. Respondents ranked funding community organizations second among spending priorities.

The City of Boston has developed a Long-Term Public Health Strategic Outlook addressing the dual crisis of substance use and homelessness. Much of the work has focused on the Mass and Cass area and has been successful by providing outreach, case management, and access to low-threshold shelters throughout the city. However, overdose mortality continues to be a concern. From 2020-2022 combined, the average annual opioid overdose mortality rate for Black and Latinx Boston residents was 66% and 31% higher than white residents, respectively. The leading cause of premature death among male Black and Latinx residents for 2017 through 2021 combined was opioid overdoses. These data emphasize why equity should underpin responses to addressing the Boston opioid overdose crisis.

The purpose of the Community Overdose Response Grants is to fund community-based organizations to deliver services that will prevent overdoses within neighborhoods at higher risk of overdose, including Black and Latinx communities.

BPHC is seeking proposals from qualified organizations to implement community-based projects responding to opioid overdoses. The City is offering a one-time pool of $1,000,000, which can support awards of up to $200,000, to five organizations or more, depending on the funds requested and proposals. Organizations may use the funding across three years. BPHC requires that recipients follow best practices for reducing overdoses, expanding access to services throughout the most burdened neighborhoods and communities.

All service contracts awarded by the Boston Public Health Commission may be subject to the City of Boston’s living wage ordinance. This ordinance requires that all employees working on sizable city contracts earn an hourly wage that is enough for a family of four to live at or above the federal poverty level. This wage amount, called the living wage, is recalculated every year. For more information, please visit the City of Boston Living Wage Division.

As part of BPHC’s efforts to have an equitable procurement process, BPHC will consider and encourage Certified Underrepresented Businesses Enterprises (CUBE) that includes; Minority-owned Business Enterprises (MBE), Women-owned Business Enterprises (WBE), Veteran-owned Business Enterprises (VBE), Disability-owned Business Enterprises (DOBE), Lesbian Gay Bisexual Transgender Business Enterprises (LGBTBE), Minority Non-Profit (MNPO), Women Non-Profit (WNPO), Minority Women Non-Profit (MWNPO) and local businesses to apply to this RFP.

SCOPE OF WORK

City strategic planning identified strategies for reducing overdoses, informing the grant criteria, taking a targeted approach to expanding evidence-based practices in Boston neighborhoods.

Required Activities

All applicants must include overdose education, naloxone distribution, and linkage to care in their proposals. These activities are mandatory and applications that do not include these activities will not be considered for funding.

1. Overdose Education
 - a. Preventing opioid overdoses by implementing evidence-based training programs to increase community understanding of how to recognize the signs and symptoms of an overdose, how to respond, and proper administration of naloxone
 - b. Developing educational materials in multiple languages
 - c. Having capacity to facilitate training sessions through various modalities, including in-person, online platforms, workshops etc
2. *Naloxone Distribution
 - a. Establishing and maintaining a reliable supply chain for procurement of naloxone to meet community demand
 - b. Implementing targeted distribution strategies to increase the availability of naloxone, prioritizing reaching disproportionately burdened populations, Black and Latinx communities
3. Linkage to Treatment
 - a. Assisting individuals in navigating treatment options, making referrals to treatment

- services, and conducting “warm handoffs”
- b. Developing strategies to address barriers to treatment such as transportation, lack of insurance coverage, stigma etc.
 - c. Developing culturally and linguistically appropriate materials to equip communities with information about local resources.

Other Potential Activities

Applicants may also propose activities which fall into the following categories.

- Outreach and Engagement – Establishing trust and rapport with people who need services, making referrals, and distributing resources.
 - Examples include neighborhood community and business engagement teams, neighborhood overnight outreach, and expanding street teams to include medical, clinical, and/or recovery support staff.
- Harm Reduction – Preventing overdoses among people who use drugs by connecting them with medication assisted treatment and distributing naloxone and other harm reduction supplies.
 - Examples include expanding harm reduction services at community health centers, public health vending machines, and mobile methadone operations.
- Treating the Whole Person – Improving the health of people who use drugs/are in recovery by helping them find stability in employment and housing.
 - Examples include a low-threshold work program, life skills training, wraparound services, or housing scholarships.
- Expanding Equitable Care – Addressing gaps in care and/or expanding culturally-tailored programming.
 - Examples include expanding drop-in spaces to serve people who use drugs and experience homelessness, or funding recovery coaches in historically marginalized communities such as LGBTQ+, Black, and Latinx communities.

Program Evaluation and Reporting

Funded projects must track the required activities, including # of people trained on naloxone, # of kits distributed, and # of people linked to substance use treatment services. BPHC will work with grantees to establish additional metrics and evaluation processes, including measures specific to proposed activities. Applicants should propose what they intend to measure as a result of this funding. Recipients of the new BPHC grants are required to report monthly metrics, success stories, lessons learned, and expenditure reports.

Learning Community and Technical Assistance

The BPHC grants program will organize a monthly learning community of grant recipients to support sharing of resources and practical experience. The Community Overdose Response Grants Program will support recipients throughout the grant duration to build organizational capacity. Inspired by the SAMHSA New England office, BPHC will organize an event to showcase grantees and their impact. The event can summarize one year of service.
